THOSE OF SAN DIEGO AND DENVER.

The Herald's Interviews Aroused Great Interest In the Formation of a Real Estate Exchange for this City.

The Herald's Interviews are the talk of the town.

Real estate men insist that it was the preatest real estate feature that ever speared in a western journal. These expressions—coming from men familiar with the enterprise of the Denver papers—are very lattering, as no special effort was made to preate anything more than a fair epitome of the feelings of the real estate men on a question of vital importance to their business. It was not heralded as a "boom" builtion, nor intended as such, and if it exedition, nor intended as such, and if it extelled, it was but a weekly occurrence too common to boast of.

That real estate men who had not the op-portunity of learning the workings of ex-changes in other cities may acquaint them selves of this topic; the plan of organiza-tion and the important by laws of the Denver and San Diego exchanges are given below: A few of the salient features, little un-

Denver and San Diego exchanges are given
A few of the salient features, little understood, are that a member of the exchange is not compelled to list his property on the exchange through at San Diego the exchange became so popular that nine-tenths of the property sold was passed through the exchange. All reputable agents recognized it as the only medium, and had on their signs in hold letters the fact that they were members. When first formed a greant rear went up from the curbstone brokers, and for a while the old firms that they were finally driven to accept its advantages. It is suggested that a number of real estate men familiar with the workings of exchanges elsewhere should meet together at once and select from the by-laws and rules of other organizations those hest adapted for an exchange here, and that these be submitted to a called meeting of all the real estate men of this city, where they can be read and discussed.

opposite direction. But the show got in all right and was given on time. The throng who wont away were merely the overflow who could not get within halling distance of the box office. Probably nothing like that jam was ever seen since the theatre was a theatre. It was almost impossible to get the door open in the parquette, owing to the numbers who were standing up, and the same condition of things reigned in every other part of the house. "Pantasma" has been done in Sait Lake before, so everyone knows what kind of a hobgob lin fairly tale spectacle it is. It goes out on the road each season with Low sets of scenery, new trick effects, new songs and now dances, hence is always attractive, even though its microscopic plot knows no change. This season it is dressed up more brightly than ever, the scenery being most magnificent, the dressing equally handsome and the tricks of the clown and the mechanical contrivances being absurd as ever. As a plece for children "Fantasma" stands without a rival in the whole creation of phantasies. It goes for the last time to night.

An error in yesterday's Herald put the at-traction at the Grand last evening as the "Black Hussar," whereas the intention to do that opera-had been abandoned some time ago and "Nadjy" announced for last evening. The andience was very good, considering the crowd at the other house and the fact that the piece was on its sec-ond night.

Sir Charles Lewis, Conservative, admitted that the report proved little that was not known before, but said it proved what before was disputed. He accused Campbell, Parnell's private secretary, of removing the books of the league. A lively passage here ensued. Campbell declared he last saw the books in Liverpool, and so far as he knew the same books had been produced before the commission.

Lewis contended that every charge that had been disproved would have been proved if all the books had been produced.

Sexton said he wished to explain on behalf of Parnell why they refused to place at the disposal of their opponents a statement of the finances of the party.

There is much gossip among the delegates, and Manager Lecbly, of Detroit, thinks there will be only eight clubs in the league after all. A NEW METHOD OF CASTING Iron, Which Opens up a Wide Field, has been Discovered by John Farrar. [Special to THE HERALD-Examiner Dispatch.] Bosron, March 4.-Foreman John Far rar, of the Smith Iron company, of this city, has discovered a new method of casting iron, which opens up a wide field. He has found that pen and ink sketches of common writing paper can be transferred to iron as distinctly as if the mould was of greater size. Three plates, one 3½x4 inches and the others 5x6 inches, are proof of his ingenuity. Upon the smallest one is written the Lord's prayer, the letters being quite distinct and containing outline drawings. Farrar explains his work is the mount of the containing of the cont Farrar explains his work in this way:

"What you see on them is done with a common steel pen on a piece of thin paper. The paper when prepared is pinned into a sand mould and iron is poured into the mould and the writing is transferred to the casting."

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar edicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston indy who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

> Get 0

"In one store where I went to buy Rood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." Miss. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.
